Cordell Hull.

It would be a calamity to Tennessee, to the nation and to the Democratic party if Cordell Hull should be defeated in the Fourth district this year. The eyes of the state and of the nation are now on the voters of the upper Cumberland section as they have never been. With the death of Padgett, the dean of the delegation from this state, Tennessee now has only two veterans in the house, Finis Garrett and Byrns. New members will be elected from at least three districts, and it is, therefore, of the highest importance to the prestige of the state of Hull, the veteran legislator and a real leader of men, should be returned.

Cordell Hull served fourteen years in the house. He forged to the top of that great body. He became a member of the committee of committees that really dominates the affairs of the lower house. He was admittedly the ablest authority on taxation and revenue that the Democrats had. He could measure lances with the ablest of Republicans. If ever a man had fitted himself for conspicuous and really valuable service to the country in the halls of legislation that man is Cordell Hull. It is not at all creditable to the voters of the Fourth district that they declined him the election that he so well deserved. It is a great mistake to change public servants. They increase in usefulness to their country with experience, if they really have the capacity for service. Of course there are often topwaters who ride some wave to victory and who are incapable of real, disinterested service. They should be retired at the earliest possible moment. But Hull is not of that class. The Herald has faith that the people of his district will repent of their mistakes and elect him.—Columbia Herald.

The Merry Farmer.

If our national groups of labor would work as the farmer does, our economic troubles would be over. About one-third of the American people earn their livelihood on the farm and this great army of labor works on faith. He carries all the risks of weather, heat and cold, of flood and drought, of storms, of insects pests and of plant and animal disease. His wages are not paid regularly every week or every month. Instead he must receive his compensation at irregular intervals varying from three months to a year or more, depending upon the nature of the crop. He must plant enough to make sure that there will be food for all with the certainty that at the same time in unusually favorable seasons the results may be a large surplus and that this surplus which cannot be hidden, probably will cause prices lower than the actual cost of production. The farmer must be willing to accept these low prices with the best grace possible and adjust his living expenses to meet his reduced income.

How different is the farmer's service to humanity from those

Bible Thoughts for the Week

INFINITE WISDOM AND KNOWLEDGE—O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out! For who hath known the mind of the Lord? or who had been his counsellor.

THANKS AND PRAISE—O give thanks unto the Lord, for he is good; for his mercy endureth for ever. Oh that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men.—Psalm 107: 1, 8

WHEN FOOLS CRY—Fools, because of their transgression, and because of their iniquities, are afflicted. Then they cry unto the Lord in their trouble, and he saveth them out of their distresses.—Psalm 107: 17, 19.

TRANSPPOSITION OF RICHES:—For ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that, though he was rich, yet for your sake he became poor, that ye through his poverty might be rich.—2 Corinthians 8: 9.

groups who think only of themselves and how they can profit most at the expense of the community at large and especially at the expense of the farmer who is usually the goat. The farmer is sick and tired of this sort of business. He sees no reason why such disputes cannot and should not be settled in an orderly and lawful way; without the interruptions of service which cost him, and in fact all the rest of us, so dearly.

Hon. Cordell Hull, Democratic nominee for Congress, spoke to a crowded house at the courthouse Monday night. His address was well received, at the close of which he was presented with flowers by Miss Lucile Gist. Large crowds heard him at the other points in the county, and much interest was manifested in the election of the entire democratic ticket.

Jackson--Garrison.

Garland C. Jackson, County Register, and Miss Annie Mary Garrison, were married Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock near the Dudley Hill church, Elder John W. Fox officiating.

Mr. Jackson is serving his second term as Register, being elected in August for another term of four years. He is making a most excellent record as Register, and is starting out on his second term with the determination of making a record during the next four years that every citizen will be proud of.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Garrison of the tenth district and is a most charming young lady.

The Sentinel joins their many friends in extending congratulations.

They will reside in Gainesboro.

Elloping Couple Wed Here.

Mr. J. L. Brewer, of Jackson, Tenn., and Miss Elise Lee, of Cookeville, eloped to this city Saturday, Oct. 21, and were married while seated in their automobile on the public square, Esq. G. L. Dudley officiating.

Mr. Brewer is an ex-soldier and is attending the Vocational Training school at Cookeville, where he is taking a course in auto mechanic and will graduate next spring. He is a most excellent young man and held in high esteem by his many friends.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Lee, (sheriff of Putnam county) and a young lady of charming personality, and a leader in the younger set of Cookeville.

The bridal party consisted of Miss Pattie Cravens, Will Billingsley and Earl Moore. After spending a short time in Gainesboro, they returned to Cookeville.

ville.

The young couple have a wide circle of friends who extends congratulations.

WILMOTH--PETTY.

John W. Wilmoth, prominent merchant on Gainesboro R-3, and Miss Berchie Petty were married Sunday at 1 P. M., near Dudley Hill, Elder J. W. Fox performing the ceremony in the presence of a few friends.

Mr. Wilmoth is conducting a store on the Gainesboro and Double Springs road seven miles south of here. He is a splendid business man and held in high esteem by his customers and friends.

The bride is the fifteen year old daughter of John Wade Petty, a young lady of many lovable traits of character.

Their many friends extend congratulations and best wishes.

The death of George Draper at his home in Chattanooga Saturday morning, was a great shock to his many friends in Jackson county. His bereaved family have the sympathy of all. An article relative to his death, taken from the Chattanooga News, is published in this issue.

BILL SAM'S DICTIONARY

By J. L. MARTIN

While it was raining so hard the other day, Bill Dooley suddenly ran out of chewing tobacco; but Bill, not to be outdone, ran nearly a mile over to Lem Gardner's and borrowed Lem's umbrella so he could go to the store for his tobacco without getting wet.
